Grounded in traditional print collateral design, marketing and advertising for a myriad of corporate accounts, the web won her heart in 1995, when experience design was in its nascence. Since then she has honed skills in brand articulation and design as a creative director and producer of analog and digital products for investment managers and intellectual property clients. Areas of expertise include identity refreshment, heuristic evaluation, customer experience architecture, information design, enterprise product design (private portals/intranets) and project management of complex web development projects.

Her work has been recognized nationally by organizations and publications such as Communication Arts, the American Institute of Graphic Arts, SIGGRAPH, the Art Directors Clubs of New York and Connecticut, and the Advertising Club of Los Angeles.

A graduate of Goucher College in Fine Arts and English, Gail has served on the board of the New York chapter of AIGA. While painting in Europe under a Thomas J. Watson Fellowship, her work was exhibited in the Mall Gallery, London and the Grand Palais, Paris.

Currently exploring a passion for Persian and Turkish music and poetry, her independant brand consulting includes marketing and web design for non-profits along with ongoing investigations into the social and cultural ramifications of algorithm driven technologies, metrics harvesting, the digital attention crisis and the potential of humane design.
